SCHOOL

Dear Mr. Lambeau

Lincoln High School Campus does perfectly express a majestic, unapproachable loveliness.

THE ALEXANDRIAN

The tribute of a city to those who have reared for themselves a memorial more enduring than stone and one which not even the flight of time can destroy.

FLAHERTY

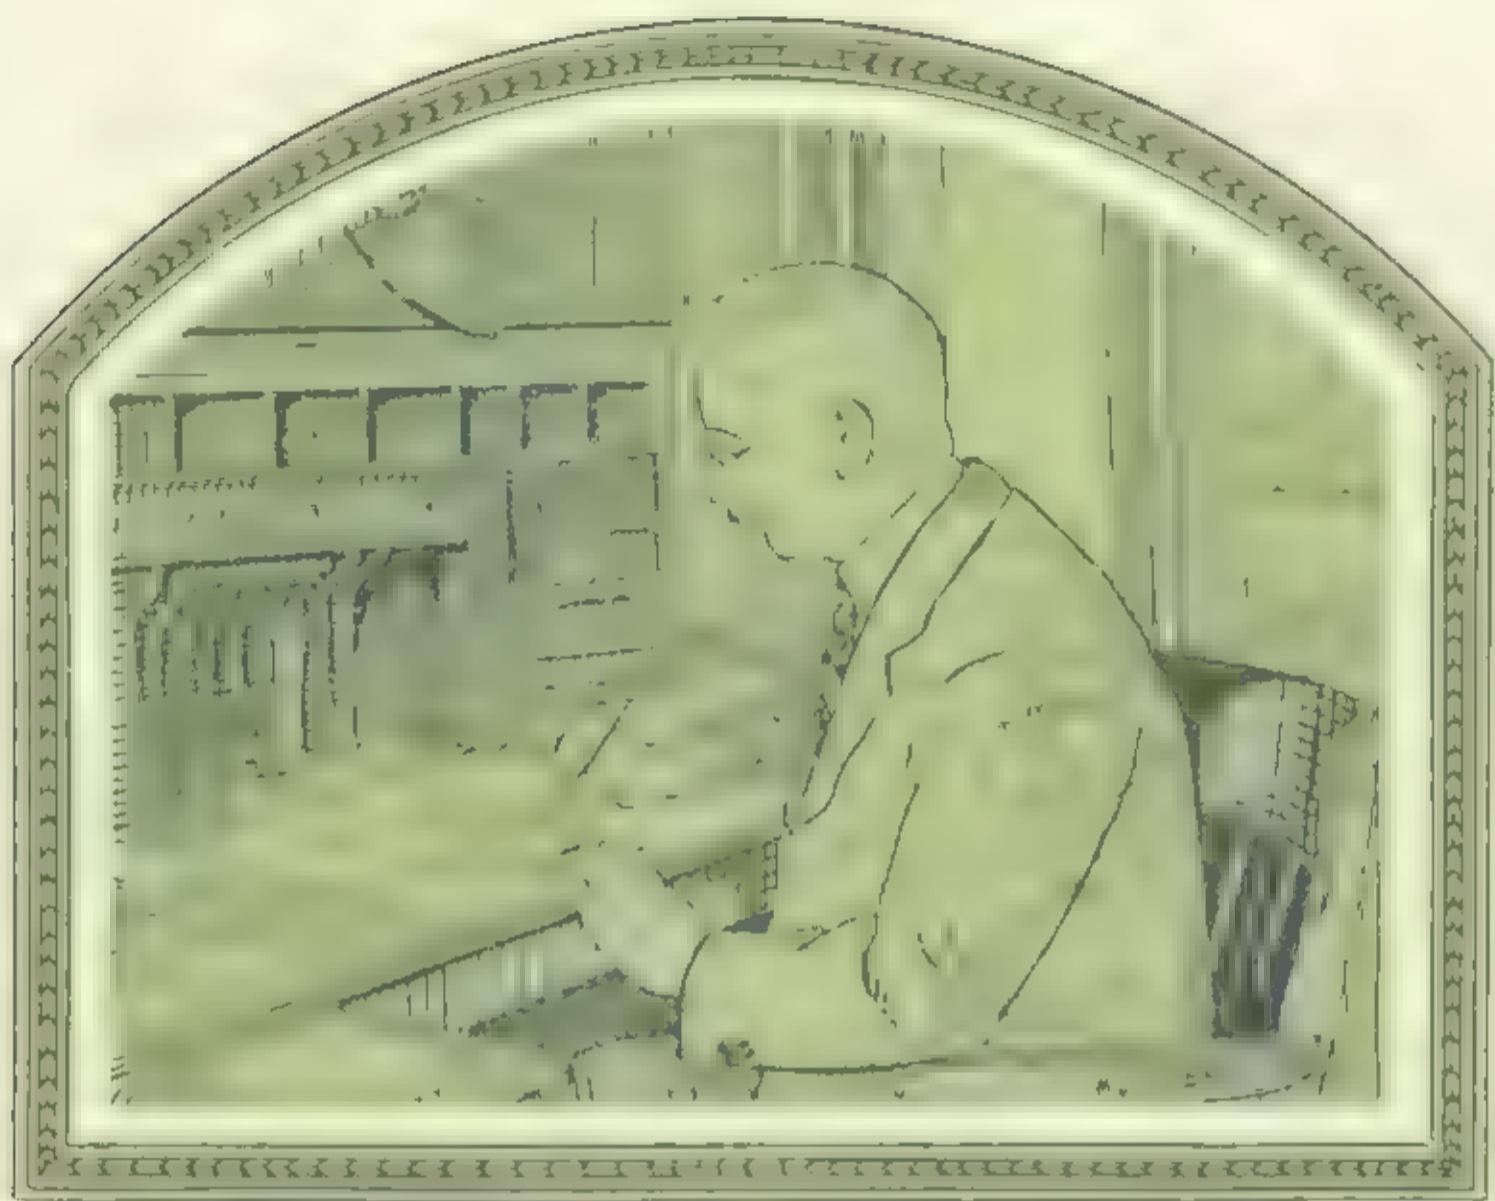

In the distance is the harbor. To it, we attribute the growth of Manitowoc as an industrial center.

LETTERS (FLAMBEAU)

GREETINGS

It is a pleasure and a privilege as chief executive of the City of Manitowoc to extend to the graduates of the 1929 class of the Lincoln High School the congratulations which you are entitled upon successfully completing four years of varied studies in the high school.

The citizenry in general will be pleased to welcome you into their fold with a sense that you have successfully undertaken the first major activity of what we all hope will be fruitful and useful lives in the community in which you now reside or in which you may choose to live.

The United States owes its position in the world to the native intelligence of its citizens and to the educational facilities of the present generation. Your years of high school work have given you an opportunity to learn the importance of concentration they have given you insight into the tremendous importance of constant training yourself for the vocation or avocation which you may choose to follow.

Oftenly and in many cases personally the high school graduate looked upon the hope of the future. The successful completion of four years of work has shown the necessity for not regarding education as a pastime and it has shown that the things that matter most concern nothing but the mind. It is all important to weigh things and to arrive at the root of the problem before yielding to persuasion or to the emotions.

You, who are now entering upon the threshold of manhood and womanhood, know that your early high school learning have been merely preparatory for the constant concentration and study which you must continue to follow in all the years of your life. Those years which you have passed through have been valuable in the forming of personal bonds of friendship of esteem and of unwavering faith in your classmates and your future compatriots in the life of the community.

Expenditures for education in the City of Manitowoc represent nearly one-third of all the expenditures incurred by the city and the expenditures are approved by the vast majority of the citizens giving the city of the city an opportunity to open its schools on the basis of equality, second to none in Wisconsin.

It is my personal hope that all of the graduates of 1929 will continue to practice what they have so ably started in pursuing their courses of study to secure the coveted diploma, soon to be awarded.

My personal congratulations are extended to each and every one of you.

John Schroeder

PUBLIC EDUCATION

America represents departure from the traditional in practically every field of activity. In no field is this more pronounced than in education. In harmony with the principles cherished in the Declaration of Independence and embodied in the Constitution of the United States, the idea of universal free, public education has been adopted and it is heralded as the foundation upon which we must build for our future security.

Along with our vast natural resources that have contributed to our phenomenal industrial development, the liberal public school program of America has made possible a degree of happiness and joy in living unprecedented in the world.

The members of the Board of Education represent the people in the field of public school education. Knowing that they have the custody of the children for such a large part of their working hours, it becomes increasingly imperative if they are to prove worthy custodians that they provide the best possible educational program which will make provision for high health standards, broad and accurate training of the mind, and wholesome and well balanced character building. The Board of Education stands for the best educational program possibly consistent with the community's ability to pay. They realize that such a program will make a greater Manitowoc.

It is fitting that this year book should give attention to the industries of Manitowoc. There is a close relationship between industrial growth and education. With the raising of the general level of living, the demands for the products of industry grow by leaps and bounds. What is it that has contributed most to the unusual development of American industry? While there are a number of factors involved, it is conceded by most industrial leaders that America's educational program, which gives equal opportunity to the masses, lifting the whole population to higher and higher standards of living, is the chief factor.

There is a direct relation between the growth of the American public schools and the growth and prosperity of our people. May those who are responsible for the schools strive to continue this relation.

EDUCATION AND LIFE

The art of living is becoming more and more the objective aimed at in public education. A study of the history of changes needed in how a gradual change from training a certain select few or the fewer, poor and jobs to training the whole population to function more effectively and more happily in the art of living. Within the brief history of our own Republic we note the marked change from educating the eldest son in the family for the ministry, law, or medicine to educating all the sons, and daughters, too, for the all important job of living.

There isn't any question but that the philosophy of life which found fruition in America and which was vouchsafed in a written document, the Constitution of the United States of America, is preserving today because of the education of our whole population. If this philosophy of liberty, equal opportunity for all, and full expression of one's physical, intellectual, emotional and aesthetic life is to continue, then it must be safe-guarded against abuse. This we have done by an ever increasing higher average of training for participation in and appreciation of the greater values of life.

To experience to the full the art of living not only presumes that every individual be given the opportunities necessary to make it possible for him to enter into such experience but also demands that the right of others to enjoy this experience shall be guaranteed. The art of living not only includes you but your fellows as well. There would be little art in living if one lived unto himself. The greater and more today becomes the organization of the world—the state, nation, and the world—economic, governmental groups, the welfare of which determine our individual welfare.

Destruction of the wheat crop in America by insects or blight for one year would affect the whole world's food supply. A strike in coal fields of Pennsylvania, Michigan, and Wisconsin. Financial incompetence in the management of a few of our great railroad systems would find its resultant ramifications entering the humblest homes in America.

Our interdependence is tremendous. The greater the complexity the greater the need for a high average type of education that our living in that society might be the fullest. Education for the art of living must never stop. When we have finished that part provided in the school, we must build upon it through reading, lectures, travel, and association with others. Only in this way will we be able to continuously experience the art of living in reality.

PRESENT DAY HIGH SCHOOL PROBLEMS

The principles which underlie the secondary school program change only to conform with social and economic needs. A growing diversity in industry exhibited on every hand and a consequent change in our mode of living are some of the outward signs of progress. These things may reasonably be expected in a rich and growing nation like ours where the will of the people is law. Under such conditions we cannot, therefore, assign to our high schools anything absolute. Today the mission of this type of school may seem clear and final, tomorrow, a shifting of emphasis from one factor to another becomes imminent, if the school is to serve its purpose.

Some general knowledge of the education of the young we may expect of every year of high school. It was exacting, to be sure, but very limited and quite inadequate to develop fully the boy or girl for a changing atmosphere. Moreover, the gradual multiplication of vocations together with the extended training outlined for each one of them, has thrown into our preparatory or high schools a large amount of subject matter on the pure assumption that this can be done more advantageously by young people while still under the parental roof. It may be consoling to observe that the tendency to increase both the period of stay-at-home and the amount of time now allotted to the high school is becoming more and more a reality. In the face of this fact, over-crowded, and over-crowding is beginning to show itself, as open the high schools which would like to attend them.

It may be safely assumed that, although institutions supported by public taxation cannot set up arbitrary standards for beginners, they can, however, set in an advisory capacity. The variations in subjects and subject matter which they place upon those who do enter, cannot be standardized.

These few facts are introduced to account for the growing importance of high schools as well as the increased interest in them which they are now called to accept.

REX K. JOHN

ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL

After graduating from the Lebanon Valley Academy, Rex K. John attended Lebanon and Indiana Central colleges, each for a year, and then Otterbein college for two years, being graduated from the latter institution in 1911, with an A. B. degree.

Always interested in boys, in 1911, he accepted the position of boys' director and assistant secretary at the Y. M. C. A., Fairmont, West Virginia. From 1914 to 1920, he was instructor in the high school at Ashland. He became instructor in history and athletic coach at the Manitowoc high school in 1922. For the past two years, he has also served as vice principal.

He has made a reputation for himself both as a teacher of history and as an athletic coach. His strong open countenance, and manly attributes appeal to the students. While general coach for a number of years and basket ball coach for seven years, his teams carried off many championships in basketball and track, rarely finishing below second place. We students can best express our estimate of Mr. John by expressing the wish that he remain with us a long time.

REGISTRAR

Who that has attended the Manitowoc High School at any time during the past few years does not know, and like and respect Nora Healy? Probably every student has had occasion to meet her "personally" for while serving as secretary to the principal, she also has charge of the text book library, is the recorder of "marks", and above all acts as the representative of Mr. Stangel in passing on all excuses for absence and tardiness.

We students know her best in this last capacity. She can tell by looking at us whether the story we tell her to explain an absence or tardiness is "true or false" without the necessity of giving one of the tests in which these adjectives figure so prominently. When, with a sheepish look or possibly a confident one, we present a rather weak or possibly, slightly "doctored" excuse, how she looks at us with her kind yet penetrating eyes and calmly remarks, "Now, do you really think I ought to excuse you? Be frank with me and explain your absence." The explanation that doesn't excuse is immediately forthcoming and with it comes the look that reaches our souls and the reproof, "If you bring that kind of an excuse again, I fear I must send you to Mr. Stangel. That is all." But that is not all, for her method of doing what might be considered a disagreeable duty reacts favorably on the students, who, with Emerson, appreciate that "Character is a reserve force that acts directly by presence and without means."

Olga Rahr.

IN MEMORIAM

Mrs. IF ANDERSON

The true meaning of a life well lived has been brought forcibly to the realization of the students of Lincoln High School with the passing from our midst of two members of the faculty, one after years of devotion to duty, the other in the prime of life, that point when life's outlook was most promising. Because both left our ranks with little or no warning, the realization of their loss was at first vague, but now we feel indeed, the vacancy which their absence has left. In both we have lost a teacher and a friend persons who, by their encouragement and their help made school a pleasanter and a happier place.

As we pass through the days of school, each meets with disappointments, with problems which need for their solution a kindly guiding hand. Then it is that we turn to teachers such as these, teachers who do not weigh our merits and demerits, but who, thinking only of our needs, study our individual cases and by gentle advice strengthen our sometimes failing courage. There are no laurel wreaths or pomps of display for those who hold the torch light of knowledge to us who stumble in the darkness, there is no heraldry for preparing us that we might better uplift the standards of our community —except the undying tribute that we hold in memory. If only we could keep with us such encouraging leadership, but the Fates must realize their ends.

Thus we mourn the passing of Mrs. Anderson and Mr. Johnson. To Miss Anderson is accredited a remarkable record of thirty years of service to the children of her own city. A record that can stand any test. A striking combination of faithfulness and gentleness, Miss Anderson remained faithful to our services until she was called into the services of Another. Likewise, we have profited from the services of Mr. Johnson, who has been with us the past three years. As director of physical education he introduced intra-mural sports into our school and cross country running into the Fox River Valley Conference. Ice hockey is another sport, the establishment of which Lincoln High School owes to this sports enthusiast. The shock of Mr. Johnson's death was more terrible to us in that it followed the day on which the members of his hockey team were awarded their emblems and occurred immediately after his leading his track team to a most difficult victory. His boys have pledged to "carry on" through the season with his inspiration as their guide.

Both Miss Anderson and Mr. Johnson have left with us as a guiding star the valuable example of purposeful lives, lives dedicated to the service of youth. We, who have profited by their acquaintanceship, wish this, insufficient through it is, to be a tribute to them.

ENGLISH, AN ESSENTIAL SUBJECT

The underlying principle of patriotism and loyalty to any nation is a thorough understanding of her language

The English language, as it is spoken today, is a basis for American life, ideals, and citizenship. Students are beginning to feel more and more the worth of a true knowledge of the English language. They are beginning to see that a paramount issue in their coming life's work, be it what it may, will be good English, and that English is not a subject to be studied and laid aside, but one which will be brought into play every day of their lives.

An English course need not teach us to bubble over with flowery expressions, nor turn us into literary geniuses, but it should teach us to use correctly, the simple expressions of everyday speech and writing.

Good English means clear self-expression and it is the final test which marks a man as being well educated rather than one of the rabble. A well planned English course will touch upon various phases of literature, the knowledge of which implies culture.

The English courses of our high school fill the requirements of the ideal course by rounding out the students' general knowledge of their mother language.

JUNIOR CRAFTSMEN

Seeing that the theme of this annual is based on the present day industrial system, it is only right that we, Juniors, be also represented in an industrial way. Since modern business is based on an industrial system, we must learn to live in the spirit of the modern industrial system, and not in the spirit of the old feudal regime.

In order to reach this stage of efficiency we have passed many long hours of study as apprentices and as journeymen on the road to knowledge. During our apprenticeship we merely existed as observers of the deeds of our masters, we all tried to learn the fundamentals of our new work and to build a strong foundation, which would withstand the problems of the succeeding years. During our next year as journeymen, we became more accustomed to the ways and methods of our masters, we were no longer afraid to solve problems of our own and we began to become interested in the social and industrial life about us.

Finally in the fall of 1928, 239 were appointed Junior Craftsmen. This appointment carried with it many grave responsibilities, some of which were carrying on the social life of our industrial school, promoting its social activities, and in general carrying on the work in the course that we would definitely pursue in order to graduate next year as master craftsmen.

Most all of us have settled the question of our future plans. This was accomplished with the excellent help of the advisers. As to the fulfilling our other responsibilities we have done admirably well. Many of our fellow members have held prominent positions on the Manitou Staff, this is a monthly publication which includes within its confines the literary, athletic, and humorous aspects of our industrial life. This publication has been well received by our own members and has been widely heralded by our competitive schools in other districts. We have succeeded in the first place in our class in the field of letter writing, and in the second place in the field of debate. We have also been the first in the field of physical culture with the boys having received the first place in the state competition. The Boys' Debate Team and the Girls' Debate Team are to be congratulated on account of their work done in debate.

As to setting the standard of the social life, we have also upheld the part dedicated to us by the class of 1928. The Junior Promenade was held the first week in June and will always remain a popular social meeting. How could it be otherwise if we had a chance to see our fellow members in formal dress—and even if we do say so—with Ivan Olson leading the grand march we are not such a bad looking bunch.

Our class play "The Youngest" given on April fifth, in the High School Auditorium was a great success. The play was written by Kester R. Hahn. The cast included: Willard, Palmer, Dora Rahn, and Maxine Hahn. Doug Stromberg directed the play and Olga Rahr was in charge of the music. Emanuel Teske managed the staging.

As spring gives way to summer, and that in turn to fall, we all hope to be back again under the roof of the high school in the fall of the year. A member of the class of 1928, Olga Rahr, has credit now to her name for the stage both in drama and in music.

AN UNKNOWN BALLAD BY AN UNKNOWN AUTHOR

We aimlessly were strolling
My nearest friend and I
Perchance we wandered midst the throng
To yonder scene on high

Among the mass which passed us by
From east from south and west
To us approached a grayhaired man
In Indian costume dressed

I hold strangers, hold upon my word
 Hallowed sod is this, you tread
I here Manito held council
 And to my ancestors said

Within his hand he bore a bow
His manly chest was bare
His legs reposed in Nature's bosc
Never saw we right, much less

He laid his hand upon my friend
And when he to us spake
With chin upraised and teeth firm set
We turned him to fossal e

Chieftains and warriors powerful
Why fear ye of your foes?
Can I not them from you disperse
In dread, to avenge your woes?

Ye children had forsaken me
Therefore hath white man vanquished
Now that to me ye have returned
They repent their deeds in anguish.

Though paleface hordes may harass you
To that end shall it prevail
That you be victors, though ye lose
Your cause it cannot fail

I know the Amerinds heart is brave
I know their cause is just
Who both these virtues doth aspire
I know they conquer must

They knelt, they pledged their father to obey
Of his wisdom to partake
I was not for them as children to decide
What pursuit they to take

JOURNEYMEN

We, the sophomores, complying with the general trend of the industrial scheme so portrayed in this book, might be called journeymen. True it is, that we are journeymen, for we have labored through two years of hard preparatory work in quest of the answer to our present question "What am I going to be?" We have traveled far in our journeys—from the ancient Greeks in our Freshman year, through the course in ancient History, to the present day realities of political science and economics. However, individually we have accomplished much. Most of our entire group have realized the necessity of a strong body and strong mind for successful attainment in future years. When we were apprentices in our Freshman year, we were introduced to the gymnasium system and went through our prescribed exercises at regular intervals. But, as time passes we have found that exercise may be both beneficial and enjoyable in the form of competitive games. These games do not only teach the exercise of a mind to move and the coordination of the entire body, the attitude and idea of fair play is developed here to the highest degree. These two possessions, if gained under the proper supervision and conditions will go farther toward success than any other attribute known. We all indulged in these games, but, as in every group, a few of our members have excelled. We are proud to announce that the following people have shown considerable promise as future athletes: Paul Kohls, Frances Rohrer, Marvin Peterson, Ned Belz, Orville O'Neil and Ralph Larson. As to the mention of our other achievements, Lucile Hallisy represented our class in the interclass contest and later represented Lincoln High School in the declamatory contest. William Couts and Henry Schadeberg of our class debated on the direct primary question. Lester Daron debated on the question of public ownership of water, light and transportation.

As the year now draws to an end, we look forward to the next step in our journey—that of becoming a Junior Craftsman. We fully realize the high standard that has been set for us and feel confident that with the training which we have had that, we shall make our fellow classes and masters proud of our group.

APPRENTICES

Early fall found us, 331 strong, entering a new life as apprentices in this great industry of knowledge. What a change we experienced from our former life in the lower school—long halls, large assembly rooms, the huge auditorium, the gymnasium all seemed so vast and lonesomelike to us at first. However, after a few confusing weeks, we all settled down to the routine business of learning the fundamentals of our industry—mainly all knowledge, principally the way to study. We were all given a definite program to follow, a certain number of hours of recitation and an equal number of study hours. In the beginning, it was difficult to become accustomed to work that needed concentration in a room filled with many others of our class. However, as the first quarter neared an end, we all realized the necessity of digging down into the work. Those first marks! So many disappointments and so many more resolutions to do better next time.

It was not, then, until the second quarter that we all really fell into the swing of things. Being apprentices, we watched carefully the methods of our upper classmen and tried our best to follow them. We were introduced to the system of student banking. At first it seemed that to

The past year will always be etched in the boy's mind as nothing when we might have spent it for something else. It will not be long before we shall realize how fine it will be to have a career and to be on our way in our chosen field as master-craftsmen.

Not long after school began we were assigned to our gymnasium classes. The first few weeks of these exercises are not soon forgotten—floor burns, scratches, and a good many bruises followed the first routine work on the gym floor. None of us, however, were required to take gym unless we were physically fit. To determine our state of health, we were given a physical examination and we found in many cases that our defects could be easily corrected by special exercises. Some of our fellow members were not so fortunate and had to seek medical aid.

We were well represented in debate work with Homer Maertz, Calista Parker, Grace Napier, and Alice Vining, and in the Key Club by Ralene Schwartz, Elsie Klemmer, Gustave Lindemann, Mignon Schneider, Alice Johnson, Ruby Wainwright, Reinhardt Kiefer, and representing our class, Gladys Cherney and Monica Clark carried off honors as Freshman declaimers.

As the year of apprenticeship rapidly draws to a close, we look forward anxiously to starting a new and still a journeyman. We are all sincerely hoping that none of our members will drop out during this change, but will stick to the middle of the road until we reach our goal—the attainment of our Masters degree.

ACTIVITIES

THE GOAL OF HIGH SCHOOL JOURNALISM

"Great is journalism. Is not every editor a ruler of the world, being a persuader of it?"

Carlyle

Journalism in high school may be viewed both from its present and its futuristic value. In the present sense, its first value is to the school itself, for no activity in high school can do more to establish unity in student thought; and certainly, no activity does more to create an inspiration for education. Those two things journalistic activities accomplish by the stressing of recognition of news. It is a very human characteristic of especially the adolescent to desire recognition of activities. By recording them, the school publications help to spur the successful to further efforts, and to create in the more timid an incentive to greater and better work. The school publication is the best medium for the expression of the work of the school. No other instrument, so far as we know, can express the work of the school so well. The expression of the work of the school is carried to the tax paying public. To accomplish this end effectively, the Department of Journalism must train its students to weigh matters carefully and accurately. Aside from this, Journalism has other inducements. If successfully studied, it should enable a boy or girl to improve his use of the English language. It should also develop in a person the ability not only to cooperate with others but also to find in himself qualities of leadership which will cause him to aspire to be a leader in whatever profession he may choose to follow. In this age of indiscriminate reading, journalistic training develops the habit of intelligent newspaper reading and gives a better knowledge of the literary output of the country to the end that it teaches a student to select his own reading more efficiently.

PEARL BINGHAM
Manitou Adviser

MAY CLARK
Flambeau Adviser

The modern high school is really a testing place for the student's abilities, likes, and dislikes. Viewed in the light of the future, high school journalism is pre-vocational. It gives to him who is interested a conception of what the vocation of a journalist is. It exposes him to a few of the ups and downs of the career and gives him a chance to test his wings before he decides finally that he can be successful enough to warrant the expenditures necessary to prepare for it as a vocation. It does even more than this, for not only does it spur the interested one but it sometimes enkindles interest which is dormant. To quote the words of Glenn Frank, "Journalism is a drug. Once the habit is acquired it cannot be broken. I advise no one to tamper with it who is determined not to follow it to a greater or less extent. The new drug boys and girls who are really interested become addicts through many means other than the first with the result that they find themselves in a bind."

DOES SPEECH TRAINING PAY?

D. W. GLEASON
Debate Coach

"Men are polished, through act and speech, each by each, as pebbles are smoothed on the rolling beach."

A Homer Idyl

The Speech Department was added this year. It is one which is appreciated in that for several years its establishment has been looked forward to by the students. The boys and girls who were awaiting an opportunity for speech training grasped the opportunity to include a speech course on their programs.

The Speech Department at Lincoln High School offers the student an opportunity to receive general instruction in the various phases of speech work. The courses may be elected by sophomores, juniors, or seniors as a substitute for a half year of English, or they may be chosen as an elective.

The aim of this department is one that is being approved more and more by business men, by those socially inclined, and by the world at large. The ability to express one's self well is an unmeasurable asset whether one is in the business world, in a profession, or in the social whirl. Good speech is an essential cog in the machine that grinds away, day after day, toward that far reaching goal—success.

Today, in the business world, speech training is an important factor. The progressive business man, in order to win the respect and admiration of his equals, must be able to speak fluently and correctly. The ability to carry on his business in a clear, distinct, and forcible manner cannot be denied. Consider, in fact, if not to a great extent because he possesses this ability that the successful business man has reached his present position?

We now arrive at the place in which good speech is utterly invaluable, namely, in our social life. In the activities of every social gathering, the social life of the community, the social life of the school, the social life of the church, and in the social life of the home, the person who by some means or through some means of education, has been successful in using the language of the people, where competition is keen, can do so with great opportunity for success. Under a clever, gay talker, we see clear opportunities for recognition.

To the student who plans to continue his education beyond high school, I would now direct a word. "Very definitely speak well in all the many institutions of higher learning. Use every opportunity to acquire and to improve your possibilities as a speaker."

The ability to speak well is an art and not a talent. Some are, to a greater degree than others, born with personal, practiced voice and speech. Others have to be educated in speech training to reach the same. For the man, however, who possesses a less attractive voice, the path is not so flowery. However, with training, with practice, and with a well balanced naturalness can be overcome. Men of the world, greater factors will decide a man's fortune. The high school years are the proper time in which to begin his development. Consequently, a speech department is almost a necessity in any high school.

“Speech is the mirror of the soul, as a man speaks so he is.”—Publius Syrus

An added element of value which the establishment of the Speech Department brought with it is the Forensics Club. In a school the size of ours, we often find that each senior class has among its members certain students who have never appeared before an audience other than that provided by the classes in which they are enrolled. With the advent of the Forensics Club, no student need feel at a loss for an opportunity for public appearance. An additional advantage which the club offers to its members is the opportunity for the study and practice of parliamentary law.

The motto, “Speech is the mirror of the soul, as a man speaks so he is,” was most fittingly chosen by the club as a watchword. The organization aims to impress upon the members the ever-demanding need in business and social life of men and women who are trained in the art of correct speech.

DIRECT PRIMARY

"Resolved, that the direct primary system of nominating candidates for United States Senators, Representatives in Congress, and all state officers be abolished" is the first question upon which the teams in the Fox River Valley Conference debated this year. At a meeting of the coaches and principals of the high schools in the conference which was held at Appleton in September, it was decided that for the year 1927-1928 certain changes would be made in the debate program. First among these changes was the plan to have non-decision debates. This plan was adopted by a vote of six to three. Advocates of non-decision debate maintain their stand in favor of it on the ground that it encourages debate for the sake of debate and not for the sake of victory, that it is less expensive, and that it does away with the great difficulty which frequently results in an effort to secure competent judges. Non-decision debate is being tried in the Conference for the first time this year. Whether or not it will be the continued policy of the schools in the Fox River Valley Conference is a question of deep concern to us of the Lincoln High School, in that our representatives at the legislative meeting did not favor non-decision debate.

The first conference debate on the direct primary was held December 13 on which date our ultimate team composed of Paul Rahr and Eugene Ziganiski with Charles Herzog and Henry Schadeberg as alternates debated the Appleton negative at Appleton. On December 16 the West Green Bay affirmative team debuted at Manitowoc against Richard Buerstatte and Clarence Rottmann who succeeded Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Schadeberg as alternates. Francis Hernan and William Coats were the negative alternates for Manitowoc. In accordance with the second decision which was arrived at during the meeting of coaches last September, each team was to have an opportunity of debating twice. This decision was reached due to dissatisfaction with the former policy which gave only the winning team in each triangle an opportunity for a second debate. Under the new decision, each team is assured the practice resulting from participation in two debates. The second series of debates on the direct primary began on January 10 when our negative team met the Sheboygan affirmative in that city. The last debate on this question was that between the West Green Bay negative and our affirmative which took place at Manitowoc on January 14.

Due to a certain feeling of dissatisfaction resulting from the non-decision debate, Manitowoc formed a triangle with Sheboygan and Two Rivers for the purpose of trying their success in decision debate. In these decision debates three speakers were used instead of two as was done in all Conference debates. Here the alternates were given an opportunity of appearing. Professor James of the Oshkosh State Teachers' College gave our negative team the decision over the Two Rivers' affirmative, while Professor Boody, of Ripon College, gave the Sheboygan negative the decision in their clash with our affirmative. The single expert judge was a feature which proved successful in the decision debates in this triangle.

PUBLIC UTILITIES

As was decided last September each school in the Fox River Valley Conference debated two questions. The second question for the Conference debates was: "Resolved that municipal public ownership and operation of the electric light and power utilities be adopted in Wisconsin." Since it is a question which is so generally discussed at the present time, it was one which afforded great interest to those who worked upon it. The fact that it was a question of local as well as state importance made it more interesting than many questions which are more removed from local environment.

From the numbers who presented themselves at the inter-class debates, Lester Daron and Clarence Rezek with Adolph Vollendorf and Sydney Herman as alternates were chosen to represent the school on the affirmative of the public utility question, while Clarence Pieschel and Herman Klackner with Howard Metzger and Leonard Peroutka as alternates were selected to uphold the negative.

The first clash on this question came February twenty-seventh when our affirmative debated at Oconto with their negative. This was followed two days later by a debate at home between our negative and the Oshkosh affirmative. The second series of debates on the question began on March thirteenth when our negative met the Marinette affirmative at Marinette. On

Owing to the fact that Lester Daron, Herman Klackner, Clarence Pieschel, Clarence Rezek, William Coats, and Henry Schadeberg are all underclassmen, debate prospects for next year are with six veterans. Of these six, Lester Daron, William Coats, and Henry Schadeberg are only sophomores, a fact which encourages us to look forward to unlimited opportunities for the best team in the Conference for next year. We do not hesitate to predict this success not only from the fact that six experienced members will be back, but also from the fact that the freshmen showed sufficient interest in debate to form a freshman squad. Those who were chosen on the freshman squad will, next year, be eligible for the Conference teams. Besides, the four regular speech classes which were conducted throughout the year have served to show up unlimited possibilities for the future. We are able to find in meeting these classes a desire to do even more to develop the training and confidence necessary to make them feel equal to participation in actual debate work next fall. So encouraging an outlook should also induce many others to desire to elect the work next year. It is work which is interesting, profitable, and is in every way worth the large amount of time which participation in it requires.

INTER-CLASS DEBATES

In order that hidden talent in debate might be brought to light, and in order that material from which to build up the debate teams might be found, interclass debates were held in the fall. The following students took part in debates. The value of the debates is evident for the valuable training that the student debater receives cannot be over-estimated.

The freshmen topped the list of participants—their number totalling fourteen. Of these fourteen, the following debated on affirmative teams: Calista Parker, Grace Napierzinski, Rubie Wainright, Florence Kaye, Milton Schroeder, and Austin Thompson. The negative teams were composed of: Valeria Kelly, Harold Mueller, Gustave Lindemann, Rudolph Schwartz, Jean Vandegrift, and Virginia Kestly. Two others, Homer Maertz and Reinhardt Kieffer tried out independently.

The sophomore tryouts brought out the thirteen following representatives: Adeline Hampton, Louise Esch, Lester Daron, Robert Christman, Mildred Seckamp, Frank Hoffman, Henry Schleiberg, French Ely, Robert Mueller, Alvin Clark, Raymond Rahr, and William Coats. In the freshman-sophomore inter-class tryouts, the freshmen negative defeated the sophomore affirmative, and the sophomore negative defeated the freshmen affirmative. This made a tie which was not broken due to the illness of two of the debaters. Of the sophomore representatives, Henry Schleiberg and William Coats were chosen on the debate squad and Lester Daron on the public utility squad.

The junior class entered seven competitors: Clarence Pieschel, Loretta Hartwig, Herman Klackner, Clarence Rezek, Marie Lamm, Wm. Brown, and Chester Tietgen. Clarence Pieschel, Herman Klackner, and Clarence Rezek were later chosen on the public utility squad.

Twelve seniors entered the competition. They were: Chester Tietgen, Eugene Zeglinski, Charles Herzog, Neman Bantin, Paul Rahr, Francis Heffernan, Adolph Kuehne, Edward Perrotta, Edward Metzger, Sydney Klein, Clarence Rezek, Robert Mueller, and Lawrence Geiger. Of these twelve, Eugene Zeglinski, Charles Herzog, Paul Rahr, Francis Heffernan, Clarence Rezek, Richard Bantin, Joseph Vondrak, and Edward Metzger, find places on one or the other conference squads either as regular speakers or alternates.

In the final tryouts, the seniors were defeated by the juniors both in the affirmative and the negative. This fact may well raise our hopes for next year, because while we lose many debaters who are seniors, there is still a wealth of material among the under-classmen from which to build a future team.

DECLAMATORY - ORATORY -- EXTEMPORANEOUS SPEAKING

This year, over seventy-five girls turned out for declamatory work. The large number entering made it necessary for Mr. Gleason to share some of the work of training with other teachers. In the class contests the winners were

Freshman—Monica Clark, Gladys Cherney, Hilda Rodewald
Sophomore—Lucille Hallisy, Helen Geimer
Junior—Marion Kelly, Mary Sladky
Senior—Janet Spindler, Dorothy Feldman

In the inter-class contest, Lucille Hallisy, with the reading, "Nicoletta" was awarded first place and Dorothy Feldman with the reading, "A Case of Fits" was awarded second place. Lucille represented the school at the Conference Contest at West Green Bay.

In oratory, the turnout was not so large as it was in declamation. The following entered the elimination contest on March twentieth. Clarence Rezek, Henry Schadeberg, Paul Rahr, and Richard Buerstette. Paul Rahr, for the second time, was selected to represent Lincoln High School in the Conference Contest which this year was held at Sheboygan. His two years of conscientious effort as a representative of Lincoln High in oratory, will, we trust, be truly appreciated for it meant the devotion of much time and energy on his part.

In extemporaneous speaking, Richard Buerstette, Clarence Rottmann, Natalie Rahr, Faye Kircher, Herman Klackner, Homer Maertz, and Reinhardt Kieffer entered the preliminary try outs. Clarence Rottmann represented Manitowoc at Oshkosh on May ninth.

For students who desire to do something in dramatics, this club offers an excellent opportunity. It is only its second year, but if its popularity be judged by the members who sought admission in the fall, it is evident that the interest of the members has created enthusiasm, without which there is little hope for the success of the club. The members are sincere in their appreciation of the best in drama. They have studied several productions and have produced very interesting sketches. Some fine work can be done in this organization because admission is by try out and only persons are eligible who have a scholastic average of "B" or better. This limits the group to those who have sufficient time to devote to the activities of the organization.

The local dramatic club has affiliated itself with the Wisconsin Dramatic Guild - a state organization for the encouragement of play writing and producing

WHY A MUSIC DEPARTMENT?

"The man that hath no music in himself
Nor is not moved with concord of sweet sound
Is fit for treason, stratagems, and spoils."

Shakespeare

Music occupies a most important place in the affairs of life. "Through music, living is made more enjoyable for it washes away from the soul the dust of our daily routine." It provides happiness for one's leisure hours whether from the fact that one is himself a musician or from the fact that through his appreciation of the finest in this art, he enjoys the performance of others. Good music has an intellectual and up-lifting influence. It is the language of culture, the universal medium whereby the expression of man's emotions is made possible. A knowledge and appreciation of it brings with it social graces and prestige.

Omitting to recognize the importance of musical training in determining the aesthetic life of our American boys and girls, until recent years, America had permitted her music to pass neglected. She has, finally, awakened to a realization of the fact that she as a nation, rated far below par in this most beautiful of arts. Notwithstanding the fact that in most phases of industrial and social life our supremacy is beyond question, in the field of music, but little opportunity for comparison exists. It is true that historically we are a young nation and music is a very primitive art. In a similar manner as our literature lacked folklore upon which to base its beginnings so does our music lack the inspiring influence of the bard and the minstrel. Besides, music in America, has been affected by a multitude of influences which are almost wholly foreign.

It would also seem that with Americans, an art has been rated too largely by its value in dollars and cents. We have failed to take into account that the aesthetic plays as great a part in the road to success as can the financial. When persons in charge of the education of youth become finally imbued with the theory that too little stress had been given to the unfolding of musical talent in the youth of America, they turned, as they do in most situations of a similar nature, to the public schools. As a result, music has been given equal ranking with academic and vocational subjects. While the department of music in its limited scope cannot hope to turn out finished musicians, it can, by encouragement and the arousing of interest, increase the student's musical repertoire sufficiently to enable him, if his talent permits, to continue his music in higher institutions should he enter one. If this latter opportunity does not present itself, musical instruction at least directs the formation of a student's tastes to the extent that he is taught to appreciate good music as the most entertaining of pastimes.

WHY ENCOURAGE CLUB WORK?

Now, happiness consists in activity, such is the constitution of our nature, it is a running stream and not a stagnant pool.

-Book of Nature.

The world is not without its leaders. The high school, especially through its clubs and extra-curricular activities, is the training school wherein these leaders are first found and then developed. Realizing this fact, the faculty has encouraged the organization of clubs and has been prolific in the recognition of those who are guiding the currents of club activities.

To be of any value, a club must be founded upon two primary aims. It must include in its work, features which will tend towards a preparation for citizenship and also features which will train its members in the proper use of their leisure time. The praiseworthy goal towards which all clubs should strive is the development of leadership. This is done through channels through which are cast upon the more capable members responsibilities, the assumption of which will make them better leaders of society. They prepare the less capable for a more co-operative citizenship. The work of certain of the clubs is in some sense philanthropic for, when they see fit, aid is given in various ways. The establishment of scholarships is an example of the efforts of certain clubs in the attempt to do something worthy. The various number of clubs gives every student an opportunity to interest himself in at least one or the other activity.

Club work will be of value to the individual. He may be a prominent figure in the school, is usually so selected as to afford information as well as amusement. Here, again, the individual may show his ability by participation in the various programs. A prominent figure in the life of the school is usually in later life a prominent figure in the community. Such a person is a welcome asset not only to the school but in the adult life of the community as well, for the habits formed in his youth will go with him as he grows to manhood.

Because of the fact that the value of clubs to the high school boy and girl has been generally conceded as immeasurable, school time has been provided for club meetings. Each club meets twice a month in a period set aside as a general club period. On the other days, this hour is used for general study. If a student belongs to one club, he is excused from the activity period on the day on which his club does not meet. If he does not belong to any organization, he then uses this activity hour for study. This arrangement has made it possible for students to enjoy the benefits of clubs without the added burden of doing the work entailed outside of school hours.

My library is a dukedom large enough." So say and so live the members of the library board whose constant thought is the betterment of library facilities and thus the betterment of scholarship. Their "Library Log" which is a record of the year's doings contains such entries as the purchase of a sectional bookcase in which to display the choice and illustrated editions which the library contains, and the donation of a book entitled "Anniversaries and Holidays" by Mary E. Magene Hazetine. The members who serve as apprentices during library hours lend many a helping hand to individual students in their work, to debaters, and to persons seeking advice regarding the preparation of material for programs. This is the organization whose gentle reminders make us appreciate more truly the new books which come out, which on special days create a holiday spirit about the school, and which so cleverly calls our attention to National Book Week, Fire Protection Week, and other such occasions of which it is well for us to take special notice.

“Languages are more than the keys of Science
He who despises one, slight the other.”—La Bruyere

Though English has become the predominant language in civilized countries, French is considered the language of culture and refinement. It is very true that the mastery of any language opens to a student a new field for culture. This is especially true of the French language. That the culture of France is worthy of study is evident when one considers that for hundreds of years the world has been looking upon French social, political, and intellectual life with an eye of both interest and admiration. The study of French in high school further tries to strengthen the bonds between the two greatest republics of the world by giving American students an understanding of the French attitude of mind and an appreciation of the admirable French qualities of head and heart.

Through the nature of its programs, the French Club has tried to supplement the regular class room instructions. Those programs are comprised of the presentation of French plays, the study of French manners, and a general discussion of French personages and literature.

And don't confound the language of the nation
With long-tailed words in "osity" and "action".—Freer

German and English are sister languages in that both have developed from a language spoken by a people who inhabited North Central Europe and were called German by the early Romans. About the middle of the fifth century, some of these Germans—the Angles, the Saxons and the Jutes—migrated to England and introduced there their own language, which later came to be known as English. The language of those who remained on the continent is known as German. Owing to their common origin, German and English have a great many words which are alike. Aside from this fact, the German language is one rich in literature. Some of the masterpieces of world literature are in German. A knowledge of the German language is valuable to scientific students, engineers, and professional men and women, to those engaged in commerce and to those who will travel in foreign countries.

Der Deutsche Verein gives students of the German language an opportunity of increasing their proficiency in spoken German, of forming a broader acquaintenhip with German literature and of receiving a conception of German habits and manners.

Latin has never ceased to be spoken of as the language of the learned. It is the mother tongue of almost all most of our best literature; however, it is not directly copied. We acknowledge Latin to be a great help in study for the learned in English and French but it also serves as an unequalled foundation for a thorough mastery of the English language. How many times during our reading do we come across a Latin word which conveys a more colorful meaning than any English word could? How much satisfaction it is to be able to translate foreign expressions when one comes across them in his reading!

For the past twenty years, science has traveled at a tremendous speed. To keep pace with its advances one must constantly look for the new. Class room activities are far too limited to keep all persons abreast with scientific movements. To supplement the work of the class and the laboratory, Mr. Norman and Mr. Fuller have organized the Science Club. This is not a new organization, but the outgrowth of a former society known as the DeForest Radio Club. Because this organization tended to limit the interests of members to one phase of scientific investigation, its purpose was altered so as to include practically every phase of science. Under the direction of their instructors, the members are taught to make interesting scientific studies, to seek opportunities for experiment, to report to their companions experiments which were of interest to them, and not only to look for the newest in scientific thought but also to weigh carefully its value from the standpoint of truth and practicability

"Young man, there is America— which at this day serves for little more than to amuse you with stories of savage men and uncouth manners, yet shall before you taste of death, show itself equal to the whole of that commerce which now attracts the envy of the world," —Burke

It is little more than a century and a half since Edmund Burke uttered the above words relative to the future commercial possibilities of America. We need not ask you, dear readers, whether or not his words have been realized. They have and that to the fullest extent.

With the growth of commercial and industrial interests in America comes the ever-increasing demand for persons trained to fill commercial positions ranging from the level of an ordinary store girl to a position of great importance. For a complete system of college training is necessary, for others, the commercial training received in the high school is found to be sufficient. Whatever may be the further educational plan of the student, the Commercial Club aims to give him a practical tool with him something in addition to what he can gain through drill in the commercial subjects.

For one thing, through lectures from outsiders who are interested in various commercial activities, the eyes of the boys and girls are opened to the vast opportunities which the field of commerce offers. Various business men seek to inform them regarding the qualities which employers feel are necessary in those who wish to be successful business men and women. They further endeavor to instruct students as to the requirements for workers in the many kinds of employment which are open to young persons entering business. In many ways, the club is somewhat of a bureau of vocational guidance. In this respect, it makes up, in part, for the lack of any provision in the general curriculum for vocational guidance work. Those in charge of the organization have also tried to give the members a short course in commercial ethics. The members have found this interesting and there is not the slightest doubt but that they will find it one of the most helpful of courses when later they take their place in offices or business establishments.

This is an age of science. The progress of civilization is due to scientific advances. Chemistry has aided materially in this progress. It is a servant to mankind. Our clothing, our food, all of the essentials and all of the luxuries of life are dependent upon the results of chemical investigation. To chemistry, either directly or indirectly, is due the credit for the enrichment of life. In many respects chemistry is making man master over nature. This statement must not be misconstrued to mean that man is striving to do away with the wonderful workings of Nature but rather that, by a mastery of Nature, he will accomplish more with that which Nature can supply, and he will better be able to replenish that which is depleted.

The Chemistry Club, through lectures and demonstrations, exhibits the value of chemistry in enriching life. It is not a new organization but each year added to its life has added to its popularity.

Come forth into the light of things. Let Nature be your teacher

Wordsworth

Biology is a study of living things and the phenomena of life. The forms of life are so numerous and their interrelations so complete that in ordinary class room procedure only a few of the most general principles can be treated, only enough to give the average student an insight into the way that living things exist and depend upon the physical world. Modern biologists are agreed that biology becomes of value only when it has trained the student to be an observer and to form reliable conclusions. This the Biology Club does. It also encourages the members not to overlook the beauties of biology and the pleasures which come from an acquaintanceship with animals and plants in their natural environments, for one is richer and happier when he is equipped to use Nature as his teacher.

Home is the resort

Home making is a vital factor in achieving one of the noblest ideals of all time. Home making may be divided into numerous phases but perhaps the most important one is that which has to do with one's health and one's ability to work. If one would be well, happy, and successful, he must choose his food correctly. This task most frequently rests upon the homemaker. She must know the secret of selecting, combining, and properly preparing the foods which not only taste well together but which also form a balanced meal. Upon the proper choice of food, rests the health and the well-being of the nation present and future. Consequently, upon the homemaker falls this all important task.

Food preparation is not the only factor in homemaking. The ability to set a standard of ideal living by the choice of furniture, literatures, pictures, and recreation, a girl in her own home can lay a moral foundation the value of which is immeasurable not only to her own family but to the community.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB ELEMENTARY

Treasurer—Marcella Schroeder

Adviser—Miss Stangel

The Home Economics Clubs open to the girls a larger field for the practical application of the principles of homemaking which are taught in the home economics classes. They help the girls not only to learn but also to apply the factors which make for a well conducted home. Through the clubs the girls are taught to be good homemakers and as a consequence good citizens. The clubs have also made studies of the different vocations which are open to girls. In this manner, they help the members to see the opportunities which are open to them in the future and they give them the guidance necessary to prepare them for the vocation of their selection.

In addition to the benefit which the members have gained for themselves, they have also tried to be of special assistance to persons who are poor or who are ill. Besides this, they raised money which they have given to the Economic Department which is of value from both the standpoint of use and attractiveness.

"Histories are as perfect as the historian is wise and is gifted with an eye and a soul."
Carlyle

For those who take delight in the study of history and for those who enjoy rummaging through things of the past, the Clio Club has been organized. It is one of the most exclusive clubs in the school for its membership is limited to those students who, in history, maintain an average of eighty-five or above.

Clio, after whom the society has been named, was the daughter of Jupiter. Her special field was history and her special work that of keeping before man the fame of those who had died. The motto of the club is the single word, "Veritas," meaning truth. This was aptly chosen, for there is no greater joy than that of finding the truth from the mass of suggestion which presents itself to him out of the past.

The Clio Club is the first organization in the Lincoln High School to couple with its social and educational motives a motive which is philanthropic. Each year the club awards a hundred dollar scholarship to the senior who can best prepare for a study in the field of history.

It is difficult to arouse in the student body an interest in the word geography, when for so long it has meant to them only lists of countries, rivers, plains, mountains, and cities. But since it is realized that geography is not merely a study of the immobile surface, but that it is also a study of the influences which the land exercises on its people and the reaction of the people to these influences, it has become alive, alluring, and suggestive.

The Geography Round Table was organized for the purpose of leading its members to see that geography, rightly studied, should become the interpreter between man's activities and the natural environment in which he lives. By collaborating the class instruction, the club gives its members a better understanding of the physical, economic, and regional geography of our state and country as well as that of other countries.

Travel, in the youngest sort, is a part of education, in the older, a part of experience
Bacon

To each of us at some time or other comes the hope or at least the desire to travel. When the time presents itself in which those hopes may be realized, we surely wish our travel not only to be a pleasure but also an education. This it will be, if previous preparation has been made for it through a study of the points of interest in various places. The average person who sets out to see new places and countries has but a very limited time to spend in each place. If before he arrives at a place, he has an idea of what are the points of interest which he most desires to see, his trip will be much more valuable and he will be less likely to waste time or to depend upon the selection of others whose tastes may be of little personal interest to the person himself!

For those who at present are not so fortunate as to be able to travel, the club presents places of interest through the eye of one who has seen them. Miss Rudolph, who is herself an extensive traveler, has assumed the sponsorship of this group.

From the name of this club, one might assume that it is comprised of a group of persons who follow the modern fad of solving the well known cross-word puzzle. This, however, is not the case. While its members devote themselves to solving mostly problems which are of a mathematical nature, the solution of other problems also find their way into the work. The chief aim of Mr. NAPIECINSKI, the adviser of the group, is to train the students who are members of the club in the best methods of problem solving. He tries to instruct them in the various methods of attacking a problem and the most logical methods of reasoning out solutions. This training can be unlimited in its value, especially, if one believes at all in the theory of the transfer of training. There are some who believe that students can be taught to reason in one subject and that this ability will transfer into other lines. At any rate, the members of the Puzzle Club feel that the method which they are using in approaching problems of diverse natures is of real practical value. They also find the work to be extremely fascinating.

"Nature and Nature's laws lay hid in night, God said, 'Let Newton be!' and all was light."
Pope.

Close contact with Nature not only teaches one to be an observer but it also enables him to formulate cool well thought decisions, for a familiarity with Nature has upon an individual a harmonizing effect which needs must be brought to bear upon all with whom he associates. It is a co-worker of religion in guiding man's conduct and views of life. Is not this sufficient to justify among the clubs the presence of a club for the study of Nature?

Our high school club was first organized by Miss Muth, herself a student of Nature. When the scope of her work broadened and made it impossible for her to supervise a club, the sponsoring of this group fell to Miss Zander. If through instilling an increasing, intelligent interest in Nature, the club fails to add anyone to the world's gallery of great naturalists, if it only adds happiness to the lives of those in whom it creates a greater love of Nature, will not its work be well worth while?

"Strength of body is exercise, not rest".—Pope

The tennis club, the first athletic club to be organized in Lincoln High School and a club whose members are comprised of boys only, is now one of the most popular of all the clubs in high school. The members of the club who are followers of the sport of tennis are taught to play the game in a clean, fair, and sportsmanlike manner. A very unusual and outstanding feature of the club is the fact that by its instruction and tutorship it aids the advancement of those students who are not as adept at the game as the more advanced players are.

The club, along with its various organization duties, sponsors an unusual high school tournament, open to high school students only, in which singles, doubles, and mixed doubles matches are played. Because of the great interest created among the student body by this annual tournament, the club provides various trophies which are presented to the winners of the matches. The winner last year of the singles tournament for boys was Leslie Kuplic, while Lenore Healy was the winner of the singles tournament for girls.

The year 1925 marked the rise of the Lincoln High School tennis team from second place, which it held in the Fox River Valley Conference during the year 1924, to the championship. The team had as its nucleus—Frederick Guse, who was runnerup in the singles championship matches in the Fox River Valley Conference, Leslie Kuplic, and Paul Rahr who were also members of the team the preceding year.

With five men returning from last year's team, namely Kuplic, Rahr, Kuhn, Isselman, and Wage, Mr. Ludwig, coach of the team, had some material left with which to begin work in the spring of 1929.

Murphy

The cross country club is one of the comparatively new organizations of Lincoln High School, being formed in the fall of 1927. Its original purpose was to aid and promote distance running as one of the major sports of our athletic schedule. Hard have its members worked towards that end and well have they succeeded. This is plainly evidenced by the fact that the first three Fox River Valley Conference cross country championships were won by Manitowoc's harriers. Where two years ago cross country running was practically unknown and decidedly unsupported, it is now in the front ranks of inter-scholastic contests, and has gained in prominence, popularity, and favor. In carrying out its program of promoting this sport, the Cross Country Club is given the responsibility to develop its members into efficient runners capable of holding up Manitowoc's reputation against all comers.

While the Cross Country Club is not constantly before the eve of the school, its presence is deeply and advantageously felt.

One of the outstanding clubs of Lincoln High School is the Hi Y Club. It is unusual in that it has a definite aim, an aim of such clean-cut, true ringing motives that it cannot be anything but outstanding. The ultimate purpose of the club is the fostering of clean scholarship and clean sportsmanship, a purpose which it seems proper should fit into high school life.

The membership of the club is limited to twenty-five male students who, in order to qualify, must fit into the clean scholarship, clean sportsmanship idea. Each fellow must be in good standing with his classmates, must be efficient in his school work, and must, at one time or other, have engaged in athletics.

To apply a somewhat different name to the Hi Y Club, one may call it a Junior Y. M. C. A. organization, due to the fact that originally it was fostered by the Y. M. C. A. Hi Y clubs are in existence and are thriving throughout the entire United States and Europe.

The club meets every second Tuesday night at seven thirty o'clock, in the high school. Mr. Woods is the club adviser, being recently elected to that position to succeed Mr. John

Years past, athletic qualities in a woman were regarded as masculine. Since exercise and fresh air have been discovered to be the greatest physical up-builders, this idea has been completely obliterated. In fact, athletic qualities are, today, as much admired in a girl as they are in a boy.

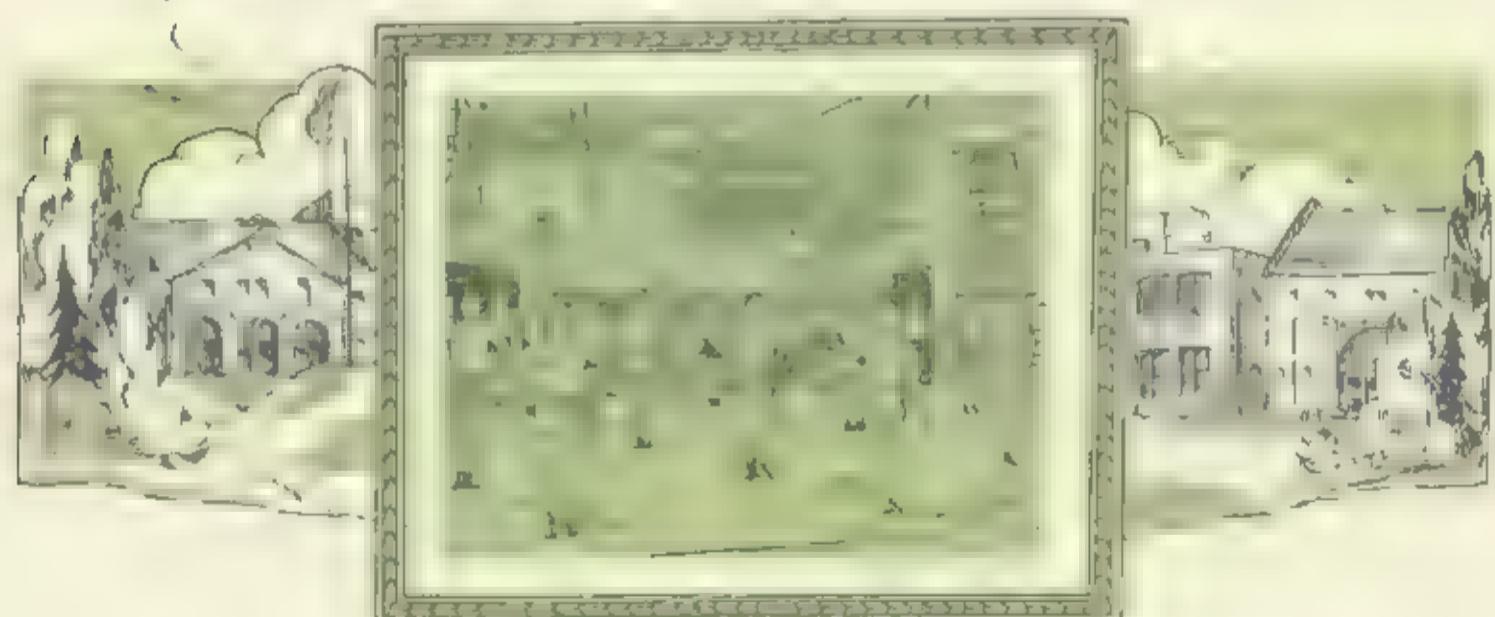

The G. A. C. is an organization which aims to encourage sportsmanship among girls. It has, this year, been completely reorganized so that at the present it includes only members who are truly active. It meets regularly as do the other school clubs. So as to permit girls who belong to another club to belong to the G. A. C. too, the association is divided into two groups, one group in each club. A girl may then choose membership in which ever group is most convenient to her.

The G. A. C. girls work for two awards. Those who, through hiking, tennis, baseball, basketball, hockey, or track, have gained a required number of points are awarded the white G. A. C. emblem. The senior girl, who besides being a member for four years has earned a thousand points, is awarded a choice of a sweater or a tennis racket.

ATHLETICS FOR ALL

X K. JOHN
Basketball Coach

For those who are able to engage in certain but not in all forms of physical exercise, provisions are made which will give them an opportunity of getting such exercise as they are physically able to stand without any injury to themselves. For those who have certain physical defects which need attention, corrective classes have been organized. It is quite remarkable to note

'Better to hunt in fields for health unbought,
Than see the doctor for a nauseous draught.
The wise for cure on exercise depend
God never made his work for man to mend.'"

Dryden.

For the past three years, the Physical Education Department has aimed to develop a course in physical training to meet the varied needs of the large number of boys and girls who are enrolled in the physical education classes. Those who planned this course have endeavored to keep uppermost in their minds that athletic training, if it functions properly, should make for the building of stronger bodies, should raise the students moral standards, should teach cooperation and should develop a spirit of clean play.

Because the instructors in the Physical Education Department feel that athletics can and do accomplish those four ends, they have been very rigid in compelling every boy and girl to enroll in some form of physical training. No person is excused unless he can produce evidence, in the form of a doctor's excuse, that he is physically unable to participate in any form of

Some years ago, the policy of athletics in high school was determined almost entirely by the desire of the school and school authorities to see that the institution turn out a winning team. With this in mind, intensive training was provided for those persons who were members of one or the other athletic teams, to the utter neglect of the great majority whose proficiency would never warrant their making the team. This policy no longer exists. Leaders in athletic sports as well as in all other school activities will soon recognize their ability and will receive sufficient applause from their fellow students to spur them on to go in for the training necessary to make for success in their chosen sport. It is for those who do not excel in athletics and who because of lack of proficiency need special training that the policy of "athletics for all" has been introduced. To meet their needs an extensive intra-mural program has been worked out. Some of the various sports included in this program are boxing, wrestling, baseball, relays and volley ball. In these sports the physical activity is not so strenuous as that found in basketball or football, and yet it is sufficient to provide the exercise necessary for the development of a healthy, strong body.

For those whose physical strength warrants their making a team, each season of the year offers some special sport in which teams from this school compete with those from other schools in the same class. Fall offers cross country and football, winter provides basketball and ice hockey, and spring opens up with track, tennis, and baseball. The students who devote their time to one or the other form of competitive athletics deserve the laudation of the student body. They give of their time for the glory of the school which their team represents.

Assistant Football and Basketball Coach

One cannot discuss the question of an athletic program without mention of the ethics of sport. The proper athletic program must create the idea of fair play and clean sportsmanship. This usually requires the sacrificing of one's self-interest to the interest of the team of which he is a member. This means the development of a spirit of cooperation, unselfishness, and loyalty, qualities which are supreme not only in athletics but in every activity of life. Athletic competition, the predominant aim of which is to develop clean sportsmanship, promotes the idea that a defeat received honorably may soon be forgotten; while a victory gained through poor sportsmanship will remain as a blot upon the record of a team and its school.

Wish you luck, Yours

Lincoln High School has always been in the Conference and has been in the Conference so far as football is concerned. When viewing the 1928 season from the stand point of games won and lost, it perhaps did not raise her ranking to any great extent. It has, however, predicted that within a year or two, Manitowoc will be as much feared in football as she is in other forms of athletics. This year, our high school was represented by a team lighter and more experienced than ever before. The spirit of teamwork and team work of an unusual caliber. It is this that makes us feel certain that in another year Manitowoc may look forward to raising her position in the Conference.

Morally, the 1928 football season was a big success. From the first day that the boys began to work hard with their coach, all the men on the team worked hard and gave the best that was in him, and not one stopped working after the successive loss of games shattered their hopes of a place in the Conference. If, as most true lovers of athletics will admit, the success of a football season is to be measured by the working and cooperating spirit of the team, then ours at Lincoln High School has certainly been a success.

Out of the squad of sixty-one men who turned out in September, Coach Sutton had only five letter men around which to build his team. He found that experience was especially lacking in the backfield. In fact the entire backfield was made of underclassmen, all of whom, however, will be back to begin the 1929 season.

WEST GREEN BAY 0—MANITOWOC 12

On September twenty-ninth, Manitowoc won its first game of the season from West Green Bay at Green Bay. Manitowoc took advantage of the breaks on the lines of the opponents, and when in the first quarter Green Bay fumbled, Manitowoc recovered the ball and scored the first touchdown of the season. After a steady drive across the white chalked lines, Manitowoc scored another touchdown in the third quarter.

Following the 6-0 defeat at the hands of Marinette, on October 13 Manitowoc travelled to Oshkosh only to be defeated by a score of 27 to 6 in a game which was played on a very slippery field. The Red and White was somewhat weak on defense and could not stop the Oshkosh ball toters from crossing the goal line. They did however, by hard fight succeed in pushing the ball across the opponents' line once during the game.

EAST GREEN BAY 32 MANITOWOC 6

This 32-6 defeat of October 20th was from the team which went through the entire season without a single defeat. Manitowoc held their strong opponents to a tie through the first half of the game, but their strength and experience made it possible for them to outclass Manitowoc in the second half. Our boys console themselves upon their loss of the game with the thought that Manitowoc was the only team to cross East Green Bay's goal line during the 1928 season.

FOND DU LAC 12 MANITOWOC 7

On October twenty-seventh, before a goodly group of local fans Manitowoc was again forced to defeat Fond du Lac was at this time the invading conqueror. Immediately after the kickoff, the visitors plunged nearly the entire length of the field for a touchdown. In the next two quarters both teams failed to score, but in the last quarter each team invaded the opponents line once. Manitowoc scored the extra point after the touchdown, while Fondy was not so successful in this respect. The touchdown made by Fond du Lac early in the game gave them the upper edge when time was called.

APPLETON 32 MANITOWOC 6

Playing on foreign territory, Manitowoc suffered a 32-6 defeat at the hands of the Appleton team on November 3. In the first quarter, the Red and White team twice got the ball within a few yards of Appleton's goal line, but the strong defense of Coach Shield's men prevented Manitowoc from scoring. As the score shows, Appleton had a strong offensive as well as defensive team.

TWO RIVERS 13 MANITOWOC 12

Probably the biggest disappointment of the season came on November tenth when Manitowoc was defeated by Two Rivers, her rival of long standing. Though Two Rivers is not a sister school in the Conference, all competitive intercourse with her has brought with it heated rivalry. This was intensified this year by the fact that Two Rivers was, for the first time since the two teams engaged in their annual battle, the victor. Because Two Rivers had developed a good team, they were determined to win. The one point margin made the defeat that much harder for Manitowoc to take, and with only one point to the loss, they worked the ball down to the Two Rivers' line several times within the last few minutes. With their struggles unrewarded, they surrendered their first game to Two Rivers.

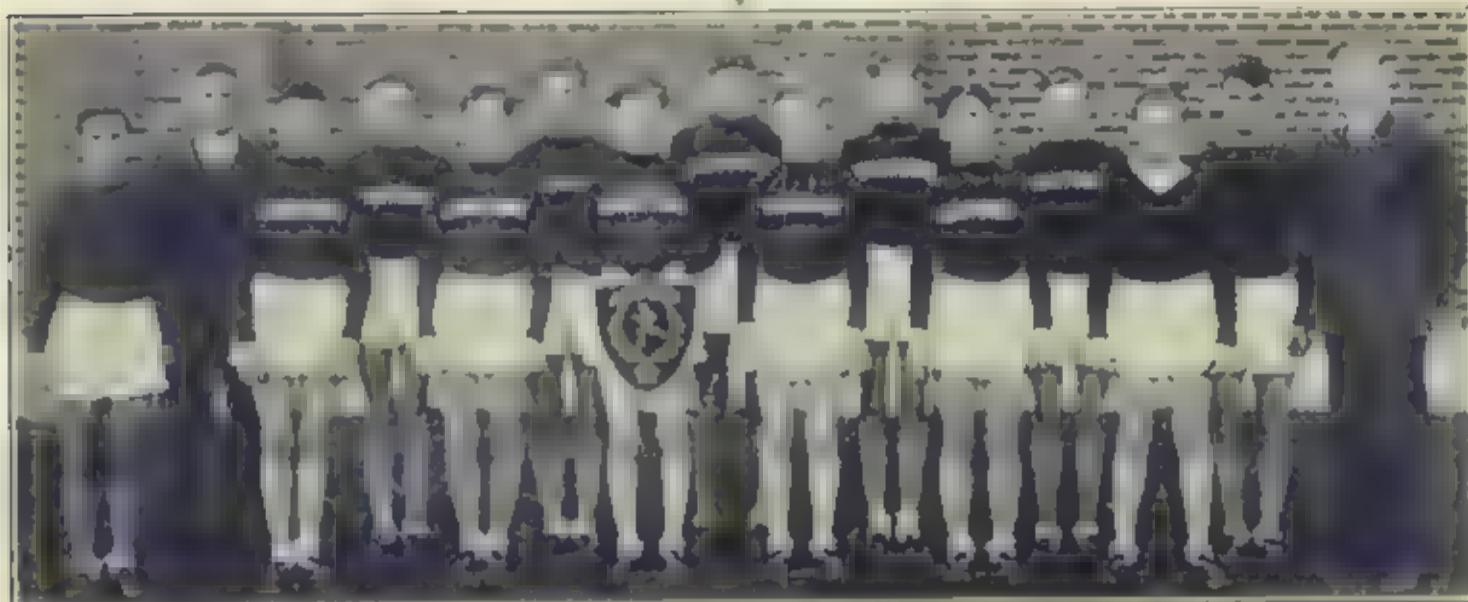

SHEBOYGAN 6—MANITOWOC 6

For two successive years, Manitowoc has played Sheboygan to a tie game. In the 1927 season the tie was scoreless, this year it was 6-6. When Manitowoc scored its touchdown in the first half, its spirit raised to the point where it hoped for its first football victory over Sheboygan. The visitor's touchdown in the last half shattered these hopes and filled Manitowoc with the desire to accomplish this feat in the 1929 season.

CROSS COUNTRY SEASON

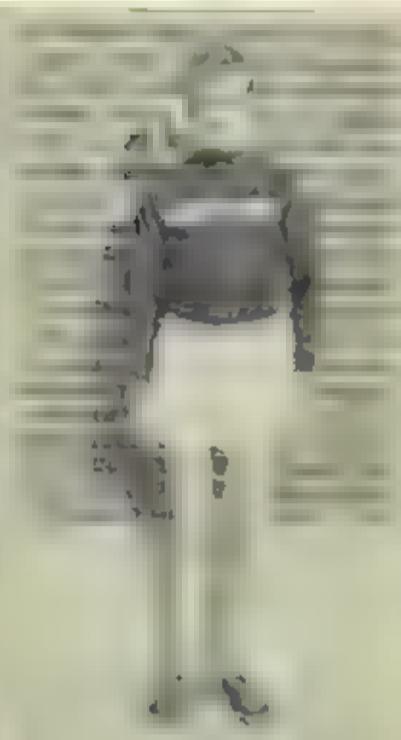

Three years ago saw Manitowoc's first cross country team carried the first annual Fox River Valley cross country championship. The next year our victory was repeated, and this year found the Manitowoc harriers again topping the list.

The third successful season of Manitowoc's harriers was opened by a dual meet with Appleton at Appleton. By placing the first eight men, we romped to an easy victory with a score of 15 to Appleton's 55. The meet was won by O'Neil, a sophomore, who was running his first race. The two mile course was slippery from a rain the night before. The following Saturday East Green Bay's runners came to Manitowoc to be overwhelmingly defeated by a score of 15 to 65. This time Manitowoc seized the first twelve places. Again O'Neil came in first.

On October twenty-seventh Milwaukee-Washington met us on our own course. The two mile course was run in 10 49 4/5 with Manitowoc men in 9 of the first ten places. O'Neil won the race with Saffert of Milwaukee hot on his trail. The score was Manitowoc 19—Washington High 55. Next came the Conference meet at Marinette on November third. Here Manitowoc placed seven among the first ten men. O'Neil, diminutive sophomore, again led the pack across the finish line. The order of finish was—First Manitowoc with 18 points—Appleton second with 48—Green Bay-East third with 107, and Marinette fourth with 140.

The season's wind up came on November ninth at the State meet at Milwaukee. Here Manitowoc's harriers placed third. Milwaukee-East was first with 40 points, Milwaukee-South second with 70 and Manitowoc third with 75. O'Neil finished third, this being the first race in his running career that he lost. Saffert, whom O'Neil had beaten in a dual run, won the State Championship.

BASKETBALL

For years basketball has been playing an important role in our high school activities. It is generally termed America's most alluring indoor sport, and in many sections, it is considered the champion of all sports. It is as clean a game as any in which a student might want to participate. For this reason, Manitowoc has all the more cause to feel proud of its basketball record for the past four years. During this time the "Red Devils," under the direction of Coach John, were the most consistent threat for first place honors in the Valley Loop. This year has been especially successful in that we won undisputed berth as Conference champions, losing but one game all season. Our two most outstanding players Kuplic and Gorychka, held second and third places respectively in regard to individual scoring. These two, together with Vierig, made up the strongest single combination in the district, and in reward for their fine work were given places on most all-conference teams. Kuplic, Gorychka, Vierig, and Isseman will be lost to next year's team by graduation. A well-seasoned group of underclassmen will, however, endeavor to fill their positions. Among these aspirants are two lettermen, Galbraith and Rohrer, regular players of this year's team, and Brey, Kohls, Hansen and Beers.

VICTORY VIA OVERTIME

December twenty-first

Manitowoc opened the basketball season at Two Rivers playing old time rivals who were determined to win. However Manitowoc's just as anxious desire to bring home victory resulted in a hard, closely fought game. A foul was called on Two Rivers as the game ended. The score, 17

16, was in favor of Two Rivers. Captain Kuplic calmly tied the score, this necessitated an overtime period through which we barely saw victory by a score of 20—19.

THE FIRST CONFERENCE GAME

January fourth

We journeyed to Green Bay for our first Conference tilt against the East High School Team. Our boys got an early start and held a commanding lead the first half. Green Bay returned the second half, determined to keep in the running. A series of long shots closed the gap in scores, but the rally was short lived. The game ended a 22—27 victory for us.

OUR ONLY DEFEAT

January eleventh

Our team made its debut for the home season in a packed gymnasium. Some unaccountable phenomena played havoc with them. The Oshkosh team was "on" and our team was "off", a fact resulting in a 15—31 defeat for us.

THE FOND du LAC GAME

January eighteenth

As in the Green Bay Game, our team started with a bang. It was this same piling up of points that saved the day. We held an apparently safe lead until the third quarter wherein the Fond du Lac team suddenly started a strong offensive battle. A field goal and free throw late in the fourth quarter, however, put us in a safe position. We won 21—17.

OUR FIRST "WALK-AWAY"

February first

This game started as though it would be a sure victory for Marinette. Our team not only failed to find the loop but also displayed a ragged defense through which the Marinette team took a seven point lead at the half. The second half saw the true Manitowoc team in action. Gorychka alone made fifteen points. We won 38—22.

"RED-DEVILS" vs "RED-DEVILS"

February ninth

Our first Conference game of the season had shown us that the East Green Bay team was close to our calibre, in consequence of which our team expected a fight. Although the Northerners had defeated all the other strong teams in the Conference, our team turned the tables and administered a one sided 33—19 walk-away.

THE SNOW BOUND TEAM February twelfth

The Sheboygan team was our next victim. This game was a sad scene for the "Chair-makers". It was one of the most outstanding defeats of the season, as the 43—24 score shows.

TWO RIVERS at MANITOWOC February nineteenth

In this clash, the Manitowoc team displayed a fine exhibition of short passing. The Two Rivers team was left in the dust by a decided 31—16 defeat.

TABLES are TURNED February twenty-second

Unable to forget the first game against Oshkosh, the Manitowoc Team traveled to the Sawdust City with the single thought of victory. The game started with Manitowoc taking a slow but constant lead against the badly crippled team. Desperate as they were, the Oshkosh team had to bow to the unceasing pressure of the Manitowoc attack until its energy was totally exhausted. Thus our 31—7 victory more than evened scores with Oshkosh.

OUR LAST REAL STRUGGLE March first

We swept away our only remaining stumbling block to the Conference title by defeating Fond du Lac in a hard fought 17—11 game. The defense of both teams was the outstanding feature of the encounter.

LARGEST MARGIN OF THE CONFERENCE March eighth

Preparation for the Marinette game was a matter of polishing something that already had a perfect luster. The Manitowoc scoring machine was in operation and no team in the Conference could upset it. This game was a "walk away," which ended 48—21, with all our subs in action.

EXTREMISTS CLASH March fifteenth

The game between Manitowoc and Sheboygan, the first and last teams in the Conference, wrote finale to the twenty-eight and twenty-nine basketball season. Manitowoc was on the far end of a 28-14 score.

Row 2—Johnson-Mgr., Spindler, Peterson, Hawkins, Brey, Ruthsack, Buege
 Row 1—Dimelton, Bulkansky, Kuebke, Schaezke, Raethen, Malada, Fricke

Thus ended a most successful season. The goal was attained by the unceasing efforts of both coach and players. It is this same conscientious spirit that has been winning games in May, which has enabled the team to dominate.

The 1928-1929 basketball season has proved that a fast, short passing game, though it may take until the middle of the season to get it working properly, cannot be stopped—a team which has developed this style of play will lead others to follow suit, primarily, because it is the most consistent.

THE SECOND TEAM

A foundation is of vital importance to the strength and durability of a building. Similarly the development of a strong second team, made up of underclassmen, is a necessity to the success of future varsity teams. This is the duty of Coach Buege, who is in no small measure responsible for the consistent strength of our team. It is he who instructs "green lads" in the rudiments of the game and in this manner aids Coach John. A good beginning is requisite to perfection. Consequently the task of building a championship team is lightened by having a group of boys fully versed in the tricks and fine points of the game. It is easier to understand the importance of the second team by taking into consideration that every player of this year's championship team or any other team at one time or another was a member of the second team.

It is almost impossible to tell just who the most outstanding prospects are, but there are at least twenty-five underclassmen on the second team who will be considered for future first teams.

ICE HOCKEY

The hockey season this year proved to be a very successful one, the team winning five games and losing three. Weather conditions were not very favorable, but bad weather only necessitated the calling off of the game with Country Day School of Milwaukee.

Our keenest rival was Appleton, as can be clearly seen by the fact that in four games played with Appleton we split even with them.

On January twelfth the team played the Alumni winning by a score of 3—1. Coach Johnson tried out the different candidates for the team to determine a good working combination.

One week later Shorewood High of Milwaukee constituted the opposition. In a hard fought battle our boys were victorious winning by a score of 1—0.

On the morning of February 2, the Country Day pucksters of Milwaukee inflicted our first defeat upon us. Clearly outplayed, our team lost by a score of 5—1.

On the afternoon of the same day, we again proved ourselves superior to the Shorewood puck chasers, defeating them by a score of 5—3.

February eighth and ninth saw the team at Appleton for a two game series. In the first game, Appleton defeated us by a score of 6—2. The following morning our team showed indomitable fighting spirit and eked out 3—2 win over Appleton to even the series.

On February sixteenth, the Milwaukee Day School was scheduled to play here but due to snow and cold weather the game had to be cancelled.

On February twenty-second and twenty-third, Appleton came here to fight for supremacy in another two game series. They again defeated us in the first game by a score of 4—1, but in the second game the old Lincoln High spirit showed up again and Appleton was sent back on the short end of 4—1 score.

TRACK

Because of the graduation of the 1928 track men and because of the loss of Harold Schrieber to East High Milwaukee, Manitowoc was left with a nucleus of one letter man with which to begin the 1929 season. Despite this discouraging condition, the team showed enthusiasm and spirit by beginning intensive training early in March. Due to the unfavorable weather conditions, they were further handicapped in that they could not forsake the gymnasium for the natural conditions of the track.

On April twenty-eighth, ten athletes went to Madison to participate in the Midwest Relay Carnival. Several of these men were entered in special events, but the majority formed the relay combinations. While the team did not share in this scoring, the boys did well considering the great number of entries in each event.

On May fourth, Manitowoc opened the Fox River Valley Conference season as hosts to the Conference representatives in the third Annual Fox River Valley Relay Carnival. In this, three of the four relay events were won by Manitowoc teams. The mile and the half mile teams, the members of which were Peterson, Rohrer, Heyda and Erick were victorious in these respective events. The two mile race winners were Bull, Belz, Larson and O'Neil. The local members placed in very few of the special events as East Green Bay scored heavily, especially in the field events.

In the Manitowoc-Appleton dual meet on May ninth, the local school accomplished a three year ambition, that of defeating Appleton. The margin of victory was ten points, points which were not gained until the last event, the javelin throw. Throughout the entire meet, the competition was close, and it was marked decisively by the quarter mile race in which Captain Erick established a new school record of 53.4. The Red and White scored a slam in the mile with O'Neil, Paulus, and Belz at the head of the field.

The last home contest was the triangular meet with East and West Green Bay. This took place on May eighteenth. East Green Bay, with several strong track and field performers scored 53 points and was followed closely by Manitowoc with 47½ and West Green Bay with 42½ points. Frick's first place in the 220 yard dash and broad jump, and the first three places in the mile run gained by O'Neil, Paulus and Belz contributed largely to the final score.

Members of the squad who have represented Manitowoc for the last time are: Rosinsky and Rottmann, hurdles; Frick, Heyda, and Glander, sprinters; Paulus and Christensen, distance men, and Gorychka and Zmeskal, field men.

TENNIS

One of the coming varsity sports and one which is readily making a name for itself is tennis. Although tennis is by no means a new sport, it has not until recent years gained a firm foothold in either high schools or higher institutions of learning.

For the past four years Lincoln High School has had tennis teams which, by winning the majority of the matches played each year, have gained for the school enviable recognition in this sport.

The 1928 tennis team completed the season with the perfect record of winning every dual match. Kuplic and Ashby won the Fox River Valley Conference Championship in doubles while Guse took second place in the singles.

Up to the time of our book's going to press, the 1929 team, with only two letter men back came through the season with flying colors, by dropping but one match and that to Oshkosh, our bitterest rival in tennis.

Paul Rahr, a three-letter man will leave the tennis ranks this year as a member of the 1929 graduating class. In the three years during which Rahr held a place on the tennis team, his game was never spectacular, but he was a hard worker and always gave his very best for the Red and White, thereby running true to tradition in carrying out the Red and White spirit.

Leshe Kuplie, the captain and a two letter man proved an able leader. By playing good tennis throughout the season, he set a standard for his team. At Oshkosh he defeated Howes the 1928 Fox River Valley Champion, but was defeated by Howes in the match at Manitowoc. Kuplie has also to his credit the defeat of Jens of Shorewood, the 1928 Milwaukee Journal champion. Kuplie, too, is a member of the class of 1929.

Though Gilbert is a new-comer to the team, he has helped greatly in establishing the record of the 1929 team. He was a hard worker, and his efforts were rewarded in the success of the team. He, together with Rahr, made up the doubles team. Up to the time of this writing, the two have been undefeated in match doubles.

HOW IT IS I AM WHAT I WASN'T GOING TO BE

When I was just a little Paul Rahr
I hitched my wagon to a star,
And that I'd go just plenty far
And be Hoboken's street-sweeping Czar.
But cruel Fate introduced the car
And thus my fondest hopes did mar
As I was a resourceful Paul
Old tin, I then set out to haul
But even this plan had to fall
For Ma said it wouldn't do at all
I then being polished without a peer,
I just surprised my mamma dear
And got the job of selling veneer,
Which makes dull heads
seem much more clear.
Being already too bright
by far,
My polish to increase,
I feared
Alas, I then turned to the bar
My concern is now to part of a shy, woman-hating young lad who leaves school to compete with the world and women. The climax of the production is reached when a truce is made with women, resulting in the young hero's risking his life during a terrible snowstorm in the South Seas for the former Two Rivers beauty who, before the production was completed, had won the young hero's affection. Seldom does one find a picture based on fact that has in it the thrills and heart throbs found in "The Love Nest."

GLANDER ART STUDIO FILES

BANKRUPTCY PAPERS

(Manitowoc Herald
News Jan. 1, 1938)

After a weighty conference in which much bandying of words ensued, John Glander and Henry Glander, his son and a graduate of the Lincoln High School with the Class of 1929, decided to file a petition of bankruptcy. The drastic plan of action was deemed advisable by both father and son, when it was discovered that the assets of their studio totaled $35,500 while the liabilities amounted to $84,300. In the course of the argument, Henry boasted that "the never say die spirit" with which, during his high school days he had talked the teachers into giving him an A instead of a B+, would not permit him to be daunted by a matter which involved only a few paltry dollars. However, the father's better wisdom and judgment prevailed upon Henry's impetuous ardor and the aforesaid plan of action came to pass.

The committee whose duty it was to investigate the bankruptcy plea is reported to have said that John Glander had shown deplorable foresight in choosing his son as his partner in business. Facts unearthed gave conclusive proof that Henry had squandered the firm's money by taking countless pictures of people

CLARENCE ROTTMAN, FORMER L.H.S. DRAMATIC HERO, STARS IN "THE LOVE NEST"

(From June 1930 issue of Photoplay)

This picture is one of the season's sensational hits. It is produced by the Jabberstone Film Company. The reason for the popularity of the film is the fact that both Rottman and Mrs. Rottmann, a former Two Rivers Girl who plays opposite her husband, are Hollywood's favorite stars. It may be interesting for you to note that with Mr. Rottmann acting is not a recent vintage. While still in high school, he was extremely talented in acting as if he knew his lessons.

In this picture Mr. Rottmann (Wiggles) reaches the height of success as he plays the to whom he had been sent to collect money. Instead of collecting bills, Henry was frequently known to have taken pictures of the debtors, the expense of which he charged to the studio—a bad failing for a bill collector. This grievous fault is said to have become a mania with Henry. Psychologists and pedagogues of the Lincoln High School were called in to make a study of the case. After considerable investigation, they ~~decided~~ that this mania dated back to Henry's career as Photography Editor of the Flambeau, when, due to a misunderstanding between him and Paul Rahr, the Business Manager, who had, on a particular occasion, told Henry to see three certain persons in the courthouse and report results of his interview the following Monday. (By way of further explanation let it be known that the Business Manager desired Henry to collect "ads" from the three persons in question.) Dutiful Henry murmured assent, marched down to the courthouse, ferreted out his men, lined them up and took full sized pictures of all three. With these, he approached the wrathful Mr. Rahr at the time appointed. Reproofs from the Business Manager are said to have brought about in Henry an unusual complex to which the failure of the studio is now attributed.

Feeling sorry for Henry, his rich uncle has set him up in business for himself. That is, he fitted him up with a floating hot dog stand. Industrious Henry plys his trade up and down the harbor selling hot dogs to sailors on incoming and outgoing ships.

Oh, yes! Lest we forget! An inquiring reporter has recently discovered that Henry has a little Brownie Camera with which he takes a picture of every fifth hot dog which he sells.

"Keep that slender figure by collecting ads", suggests Miss Ellen Eberhardt who has, for the past three years, been collecting ads for the Shoto Blah.

satin instead of delicate satire

Another formula, a sequel to Einstein's, has just been discovered in the papers of John Maresch, a very modest but learned physicist. Mr. Maresch acquired his knowledge from the late Prof. J. Norman who expired when he heard of this unusual talent in one of his pupils.

"Care should be taken so as to prevent hitting the 'white wings' while driving down the main drag," says Mr. Austin Oeseau, president of the Street Cleaning Association, who was hit lately by a careless driver. Mr. Oeseau was not severely injured and was able to work again the next day.

INTERESTING QUOTATIONS FROM "HORRORS! A HOARSE! A HORSE!"

By Doctor C. A. Teitgen, M. D. (noted authority on horses, women, and curly hair)

From the chapter "Women and Horses"

"Never allow a horse to kick you. It often leaves a lasting impression. Horses can kick nearly as much as women, tho horses are not nearly as dangerous. I have had experience with both horses and women and it is really surprising how much they have in common. As a matter of fact, there is but one difference and that is that horses are intelligent."

From the chapter on "Curly Hair and Horses"

"Many people have an intense dislike of horse meat. I will let you in on a secret. Horsemeat is the best food for curly hair. Knowing that you all desire hair such as I have, I have bought up all the horses in the United States. Thus I have a monopoly on the food for which there will be a heavy demand."

HOW TO PUT OUT A FLAMBEAU

(An extract from "The Diary of My Senior Year" by Florence Langrill)

From October first to May first occupy your mind in any way in order to forget the book and all connected with it. In January rest up after the Christmas recess. Spend the month of February in deciding to whom you will give complimentary copies. In March, occupy your mind with taking pictures on time for the last engraving discount. During April, it might be well to keep track of the rental. About May thirty-first, some bright freshman will ask you if the book will be out by June first. This will be a signal to go to work. Send the Business Manager collecting the ads which the solicitors fail to get. Start out yourself and collect what he has failed to get. One relief to you is that since the feature section is the last in the book, a good reliable humor editor will usually have this completed before all calendars, records, etc. of the year's activities have been destroyed. About 3:30 on June first, the printer will deliver half of the copies. So as not to make hard feelings, hold the distribution of these until a few more arrive. Get busy, count the books by room, find receipts for those who have lost them and distribute the books. Thus the book may be out June first. Bill collectors will be chasing the Business Manager all vacation but don't worry about that, you're only the editor.

DO YOU KNOW

That "Ginny" Means, night club hostess, has issued a statement that her new "gin" will put ginger in anyone, be it a Jenny or a Jimmie.

TOPICS IN BRIEF (Continued from p. 156)

Prof. Dorothy Feldman of the University of Weisnicht, has just announced that she would conduct an experiment by sending out a series of tests to see whether the average reader applies himself to Euclid and Socrates. Since her high school days, Miss Feldman has been a devoted follower of these popular idols.

SOME SPICY SPINDLER RECIPES

(From Janet Spindler's new book "Newberg Delights.")

The Schnitzel

Get meat cutlets from butcher shop where Carl works. Borrow your brother's jack knife and slice thin. Boil in whale oil and serve.

The Garlic

Procure two pounds of ground bones. Mix with one cup of salt. Serve with Oysters.

The Favorite

Get several pounds of greyhound meat. Do not wash as it takes away the flavor. Surrounding it with baked apples, roast it. Place on table. Throw meat away and eat the apples.

The following Tribute to Les Kuplic (now coach at Reedville High) was found in a 1929 'Manitou.'

Two Rivers tho't that they would win,
When with us they would compete
But Kuplic fought with pluck and vim
Alas! Two Rivers knew defeat (feet)
One day big Leslie I did meet
He wore no shoes (too much heat)
I said, "Now, Captain, take a seat,
And tell me how to get big feet."
He paused a while, my heart did beat.

And then he said "I simply eat—
That goody food called Shredded Wheat."
I passed out (not from the heat) but from his feet

In his recent book entitled 'My Memoir'
Charles Heyda writes:

"The prom was over, all had gone
The dismal night gave one the shivers
We hurried so that before the dawn
We'd be home from Two Rivers.
Nat took all of my attention
I lost my needed ounce of prevention
Oh, how that girl can one bewitch!
I soon reposed in a deep ditch
A fellow offered us a ride
To the garage we made a dash
Nat was ever at my side
Getting business for Rahr-Nash."
